Jack could be found out in his shop every day, tinkering with cars, building something, or helping a friend. During his time in Goldendale, Jack was a member of Gleaners and would help with food runs to serve his community. He was an active member of the American Legion, and refinished all of the weapons used for them. He also continued his passion for music, singing and playing the acoustic, electric, and bass guitar, for shows all throughout The Gorge. Jack was a son, a brother, husband, father, grandfather, and great grandfather.
