“ He was the most amazing and selfless person I knew. He became my best friend once again. I'm so glad we were able to spend the last year together and build so many memories of traveling and experiencing life to the fullest. He was the best thing that ever happened to me and I'm so grateful. He'll be missed by all of our friends and our families. No one could ever replace Christopher (Noah).

“ So young. And of all I have heard his father speak of him is how sweet, smart, loving and hard worker. I know he is missed so much, loved, and left so many precious memories. He is a positive example of how all loving should br. Rest in peace.

“ We lament of those we have lost, and taken from us, this place we're in no longer for them to reside, time and tide shall not wait, we raise a toast in their honor, and put on us tattoo's of remembrance, their visage chiseled in the mind, the ties that had bound, and memories made will be the monuments we build for them, kept safe in our hearts, inscribed on our souls of who and what they were, hark, and hear their voice on the passing wind, peripherals show their countenance in the reflection on a window pane, and our dreams keep them alive though last breath had been drawn, the line for them had been toed, a "goodbye" too final and not to be said, instead, we'll say "I'll see you down the road", and when our time comes we'll raise a toast, this time together again, our family and friends A Rogues poem, by Joseph Friend I met Chris through work. We became good work friends, and tried to sync our schedules to hit the same accounts as often as possible. He always had a great attitude, and was a hard worker. He spoke often of his wife and family. He is a person that you felt lucky to have in your life. Even though I'd lost contact with him through circumstance, he was one I'd missed from those days. I was truly saddened to hear of his passing. All prayers and best wishes to those so impacted by this loss

“ Chris grew up at Wayside Market and was an incredible loyal, hard working young man! He worked here for six and a half years before moving on to Coca-Cola! We enjoyed his friendship and frequent visits. He was an awesome father to his beautiful children, as we loved when he brought them in to visit. We continue to pray for all his family... We were blessed to have had Chris be a part of our lives!
