“ I am so very sorry Michelle. I know how hard it is to lose someone you loved so dearly There will come a time when you can reflect on the good times you had together and share your memories with your family. I know it doesn't seem possible now but you will make it through this difficult time and move on. If you ever just need to get away I have a big house with just me and my critters and you would be more than welcome to spend some time here. Hugs from a fellow face booker.
