“ Dear Morrow Family, I started as a competitor to Harry back in 1979. At the time, I worked for Wonder Bread and Harry was, of course, with Franz Bakery. Things could get tough back in the day as competitors, but Harry was a gentleman in all of his ways. Never a bad word for anybody and always a straight up person. I learned a lot from Harry during my early years in the industry. Always be true to your word and follow through on what you promise. Later in life, I started working for Franz Bakery. Wonder Bread had been having problems and I could see the writing on the wall. I ran into Harry many times on the market and on his route. He was always a bread man's, bread man! The best in what he did and always took great pride in his job and his family. Harry retired before I did, but I ran into him at an antique car show in late summer this past year. We talked for about 15 minutes about some of the cars in the show and where he saw some of his favorites. Harry was always looking out for others, no matter what the event was!!! Harry will be missed by many; I can assure you of that. I'm glad that our paths crossed so many times in our lives! Sincerely Jim Kennison General Manager-Retired Franz Bakery
