“ My sister, Margo, already mentioned a lot of how much Jean meant to our family. Jean was a grandma to me. Her generosity made it possible for me to play sports in high school. I spent many hours weeding her yard, helping her sort pictures, visiting and eating hot dogs and toaster strudels with her. I know she is in a better place. How many people offer to babysit four rowdy children for nothing in return? Jean is a saint. I'm sure Bill will be happy to be with her again. I'm especially sad that I wasn't aware of her funeral. Rest in peach Jean Bean. You will forever be in my heart.

“ Jean Bean will be dearly missed by myself as well as my three siblings. Jean was like a grandmother to us. When we were young she was the best babysitter we had! Her basement she turned into an eternal fortress of cardboard boxes and imagination always ready for the next visit. Jean let us slide down the stairs, play her organ, and roll down the hill on her old "Fargo" wagon. We loved playing with her dogs, first Major then Lady. She let us decorate her Christmas tree most years and we were sad when she had to move "into town". As we grew up we still would do work for her on occasion and always loved her stories and hospitality. We started families of our own and always were proud to introduce our children to our other grandma. I am so thankful to have had the chance to have visited Jean in the fall with my newest baby. We will always think of Jean with great love and admiration.

“ I remember the wonderful party you had at your house for all the nieces, nephews and great nieces and nephews. Such a good time. Such a gracious lady. Rest in peace Jean â ¤ĵ,

“ Jean was our neighbor and friend for many years. Jean and her dog Kita and we and our dog Sam would often meet and walk together in the neighborhood. Jean often invited Sam into her house or into her backyard where Sam would explore until he found a treat or Jean provided one for him. Whenever we walked past Jean's house, Sam would stop and wait in anticipation for Jean to open the front door. Jean was a kind, caring person, always positive and friendly. She often told us her favorite stories of her time on the farm, her husband, her children and her 10 brothers and sisters.
