“JoAnn and Jon were the first neighbors to welcome us to the Cascade SE neighborhood, and we've been so thankful for their presence. JoAnn's hospitality always felt like home. She never hesitated to invite us to spend time together, chit chat out front when we'd be going about our daily lives, and celebrate special moments. JoAnn brought us a home-cooked meal when our son was born (it was so tasty), showered our little boy with thoughtful and personalized gifts that we'll cherish forever, and spent an evening last Christmas with us. JoAnn was full of wit, good humor, and genuine care. May we always be the kind of friend and neighbor that JoAnn was to all of us. We sure will miss her. -- The Martin Family

“ I remember finding out with Ben last year about the tumor, and Daniel, Ben and all talked about our good memories with your mom and how important she was to us growing up.

Joanne was a shining light. She was someone that was so easy to open up to. I really appreciate how she supported me throughout my life. I considered her more than my parents' friend. She was family (You all are). She was always there encouraging me in my travels and my work in a male dominated field.

I will remember fondly all the dinners and times we all spent together. One of the best parts of coming home from China was staying with your family. Joanne was an integral part of our China years making our family feel like we still had a home in the US. All these years it's always been especially special to share holiday meals together. Plus, Joanne made the best lemon bars! Hell Bridge is my favorite game and I teach it to all my friends.

She truly showed up for people and listened to the small details. I remember when I couldn't come home for a family event and she and Jon were there. She gave my cousins and best friend the biggest hug and told them she wanted to make sure they knew we were there for them. It's big gestures like that or the small moments where she would remember a detail from a conversation a year ago and ask about it that made her someone special.
