“ Lisa was a warm, inviting, down to earth loving women. She had a wicked sense of humor (wonder where she got that from?). The last meeting my wife, Maria, and I had with Lisa was shortly after her mom passed. We shared memories, shed some tears, and laughed. I remember leaving that evening, thinking that Lisa and her family were some folks my wife and I would like to get to know better. To me, if you pay attention, it is marvelous how God places individuals in your path of life, that are there only for a season, but there is a purpose. You may be there for them, them for you, or you are there for each other. Do not take these encounters for granted, but cherish them. May Lisa Rest In Peace. Jim & Maria
