“ MJ was one of the best listeners I've ever met in my life. She went somewhere everyday. The store, doctor, the mall, the library, a short drive here or there, to her daughter's. That was her thing. She told me it was for her mental health. She loved her children. She was so proud of the humans they turned out to be. They were her greatest success story. I often started my day with conversations with her and the group that somehow naturally met in the mornings. We often talked about how the events that happen to us or the choices we make effected out lives. She was one of those people that was 100% supportive. I'm honored to call MJ my friend.
