“ Darcy and Tim, I was so honored to work so closely with you this last week to plan such a meaningful memorial for Baby Paige. She was such a tough little girl. Such a strong fighter personality in someone so little. I know she got her strength from you both. Hug each other (and Conrad) a little tighter. You're an amazing family. Love you!

“ Tim and Darcy, My heart breaks for you. Your darling baby girl was such a trooper and fought like heck to stay here with you. Your family and the doctors truly did everything possible and more for Paige. I am so very sorry that she lost her fight. It is both surprising and shockingly tragic after all you have been through. I know how much it hurts. I pray God's blessing of peace for you and that multitudes of angels will surround you and enfold you in their wings, providing comfort, love, strength, and reassurance that Paige is with them now. May God bless you and keep you until you meet again. Love, SuAnn

“ Dick and Lynn,even though we did not get to meet Paige We want you to know that we too have tears in our eyes as well. You see we believe no one else can understand the incredible pain and loss you all feel now unless you have endured this kind of loss yourself!Unfortunately a little over 20 years ago Kay and I endured just such a loss with the death of a son. So,when We say:"We know how you feel." We truly do know and understand the loss you are dealing with! You and your family will be in our prayers and we hope you have a strong faith so you can lean on the healing offered by our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ!

“ Your family is in our thoughts, in fact you are consuming our thoughts. You have shown such strength and courage. Paige really took after her mommy and daddy. She had such a sweet little spirit but was also tough and a fighter. She is at peace now...with her great grandma. You know we are here for you. Love you. The Holbrooks.
