“ I had the pleasure of having Rainin in my head start class for two years. He was smart, spunky, sassy, funny and so very sweet and kind. He always had me on my toes. He loved to learn and loved to be challenged. He will always have a special place in my heart. Rest easy little man.

“ They say people come into your life for a reason. Rainin came in to mine, for a short time, but definitely to make an impression. I will always remember Rainin as a smart, fun and spunky child. He made me think, laugh and wonder. He made me a better teacher by helping me see that there is never enough kindness, compassion or understanding we can lend to one another. I will hold him memory in my heart and hope that he only knows peace and love forever more.

“ You are gods warrior. RAININ STRONG. Your cute little smile will be missed so much. I will never forget coming over one of the nights and you were playing your tablet and you were in pain that night and didn't want touched but I asked you for a huge hug and kiss before I left and your mom told you not to be mean to me but you gave me that hug. I kissed you on the forehead and told you I loved you. I placed the rosary and bracelet on you and walked out the door. Like it was yesterday I remember seeing that post your mom posted of the news. My heart sank, cancer became a name for me again. I know God placed me your life for a reason and that was to help you and your family get as many memories as possible before you left this earth. I am so blessed I was able to. You will forever be missed. I hope you fly so high in heavens gates. Say Hi to my brother for me Rain. I know he was there welcoming you in. I love you.
