“ Our deepest sympathies for the passing of your dad. My husband and I worked with Ray at Varicast. My favorite memory is when a call came into the office and I transferred it to him. He didn't pick up so I went back to his office to see if he was there. When I opened my mouth to tell him he had a call. He held up his hand and shook his head no as he put the shh finger to his mouth. I then let the caller know he wasn't available. I returned to him and he informed me to "Never interrupt a Celine Dion song for something as trivial as business". He was a good boss and a good man.
