

Robert "Bob" Roger Standish

May 18, 1937 - July 24, 2020

Robert "Bob" Roger Standish passed away July 24, 2020 at his home in Vancouver, WA. He was born May 18, 1937 in New Haven, CT to Anthony John Standish and Lena R. Onofrio.

Working as an aerospace engineer for 50 years, he excelled to be one of the leading experts in the field of thrust reversers.

He had great balance in his life; he loved his family and his career in aerospace. Bob also loved music, his cats, horses and goats, playing tennis and golf, wine, literature and new experiences.

He is survived by his children, Sara and Jonathan Standish; Sharon Standish; Gabrielle Mantz and daughters; and brothers, Alex and Anthony.

A Memorial Service was held in August at his daughter's home in Portland.

Tribute Wall

IS

“ Hey Bobby, I send you the same plants I chose for my new flat in Paris. I'll take care of them & they'll remind me of u. I miss you. Thanks & Love.

Isa - August 02, 2020 at 12:00 AM

AS

“ My deepest condolences to Sharon, Sara and Jonathan. My heart is very saddened that I won't hear my brother Bob's voice or see his face again, here on earth anyway. My oldest brother was a great brother whom I loved and respected. He was always kind to me and we hit it off best in the later years of life. My brother Bob being very intelligent always had a great work ethic. It's amazing that most large commercial planes are flying safer and economically due to his engineering skills, resulting in several aircraft improvement design patents. He truly loved his work. He loved playing tennis and golf, and excelled in both sports. A great Dad who loved his kids, Sara and Jon, a very loving and proud Dad. We didn't get to see each other that much living a continent apart...and it's the one thing I really do regret. I'm going to miss you dear Brother as the reality continues to sink in, but I know in my heart we will see each other again. Your loving Brother Al.

Alex Standish - July 30, 2020 at 12:00 AM