Movies, live musicals, embroidery, rummy, and rides in the country were the order of the day as long as they were done with family. “ I knew Sophie through my dear friends Carrie and Roddy and she soon became my american grandma. I loved hearing about her life, her independence, the family stories, her travels and curiosity about all things different in the southern hemisphere. She was warm, caring, fun, dignified with a quiet intelligence...and she reminded me so much of Carrie. Grandma, it was a real privilege for this kiwi to know you. I will always cherish the special moments spent with you and the family and I will miss you. May you rest in eternal peace. With loving thoughts and prayers. Me ngÄ whakaaro, inoi aroha atu
