“ I found myself today just searching my dads name and stumbled upon all this again. Even my own comment I had made 6 years ago. It all makes me smile and think. Its crazy to just think that its been this long without him and about to be a freshman in high school. I'll always love and miss you dad.

“ I was having one of those moments having just got home from a party that I wished I could call my brother to tell him about a couple people I just met there. I may have even called him while I was there and invited him to come meet up with me - Yes, im sure I would have. Not for the sake of the party but because I loved watching him in the company of an unsuspecting audience. You never knew initially by his outward appearance how absolutely captivated you would be by his rare, magnetic and ever hilarious personality. One comment from him had you laughing your ass off and feeling as though you'd known him for years; five minutes with him and he had you signing a deal you didnt know you wanted in on. Timothy was a people person through and through, "networking" without trying every time he came into contact with anyone, anywhere. In the old days, to describe someone with sales skills people would say things like "He could sell ice to an eskimo." Not Tim though, he would never sell ice to an eskimo. Eskimos dont need ice. Selling someone something they dont want, need, and can't benefit from makes you selfish, self-oriented, and manipulative. But, Tim would sell him a vision, a factory, and transportation so he can do something with the ice already surrounding him. My brother would convince the proverbial eskimo not only to buy what he was selling him but have that eskimo walking away feeling a sense of satisfied accomplishment because he had CONVINCED my brother to let him invest in this 'vision'. Both would walk away having made a substantial profit and from that day forward that eskimo would know without a doubt he had made a new friend. Tim would not take no for an answer. When he made his mind up to do something or get something it was only a matter of time.....At the very least, he wanted to make you smile. And even now, although he is gone from this life, he is still causing me reason to smile whenever I think of him. I miss you little brother, everyday

“ Today marks the one year anniversary of my brothers death. I still find myself thinking I need to call and talk to him whenever I hear or see something funny that I know he would appreciate just as much as I do because we always had the same warped sense of humor. The laughter and love we shared could never be measured by any of us still living in this life.... Not enough time has passed for me to be able to put into words my love nor my loss of the greatest brother I could ever have asked for.. . I miss you so much, Timothy. You are always on my mind and forever in my heart.....

“ I was a friend of Tim and his fiance Amber. I had known Tim a short while. He was a real funny person and made me laugh soooo hard. The last time I had "hung out" with Tim was at my husbands and I's bbq the summer of '09. Everyone had gone home for the evening except My sister, Tim and Amber (Tims fiance). It was a really hot summer night. We all sat around the patio table and laughed really hard and cracked lots of jokes. We sat around that table till around midnight. I remember my husband and I saying to Tim and Amber that we need to do this more often. Well that was the last time we did. The day I found out Tim had died the only thing I could think about was that summer bbq and how much fun we had with Tim. I was saddened. I was saddened by the person everyone lost. I was saddened for Tim's family. Tim's son and especially my friend; Tim's Fiance, Amber. I will always remember Tim. I will always remember the person I got to know for such a short while. The person that made me laugh. The person who so genuinely cared for others! I am sure heaven loves having you. Someday we will see you again. Until then, know there are many lives you touched and know you will always be remembered in all our hearts!

“ There are too many memories to share in one single tribute about the love of my life. Tim is an amazingly loving and true person. His bright spirit brought out the best in me. We could have fun just being together and doing nothing at all. Tim and i have been friends since i was young and then lived our own lives for many years. Then some how by the grace of God we were brought together in a new light. We made a life together with our our children and family. Tim is in my heart forever...

“ It was a shocker that my dad died. I wish he hadn't. I dream about him a lot. He was the best father a kid could have and I'm thankful for the years I had with him. I miss you Dad so much. I'll never forget the great memories we had. Thank you to all the people who wrote nice things about my dad. It was nice to read some of the stories they made me laugh. “ Lived across the street from Tim when he was growing up in Vancouver and was friends with my daughter Wendy. I remember him as a really great kid, always enjoying sports. As a matter of fact he even came over to my house at times to play strat-o-matic baseball. So sorry to hear of his passing as I'm sure he was a great father and friend. RIP Tim - God Bless you - The Dams Family.

“ I just found out as I searched for Tim on the Internet. My whole body went flush and I am deeply saddened. I hoped it wasn't the Tim I knew but Jack's story of the Mariner's game confirmed it. Tim paid $340 for that cab ride because he just wanted to get home. Tim was one of the best human beings I have ever met. He was multi-faceted, intelligent, genuine, and as close as a brother to me. I will never EVER stop appreciating the time we had together. He was the primary reason I was a success at a couple of my workplaces. He had struggles that were not his fault, and I looked forward to the day when he could finally be "at home" in his mind. I know you're in a better place now, buddy -- I will spend the rest of my life missing you. Mike Steele

“ I had just learned of Tim's passing over the weekend. I was not a close friend, but he was a person that interacted with several people throughout a large chunk of my life. I have a few memories of Tim and will always remember him present through some of the best days of my life. My prayers are with his loved ones, family and friends.

“ I am very saddened to hear about Tim's passing. His friendship through the years helped make me the strong woman I am today. There could never be too many memories of Tim, but I could write a lengthy book. He inspired me to be a better person and know my worth. I will never forget Tim and pray for peace and comfort to his family.

“ I'll always remember Tim. We lost him at a Mariners game! So lost as a matter of fact, the bus had to leave without him. He hailed a taxi all the way back to Portland. and said "The driver had to stop every hour and pray on the side of the freeway". Can you imagine the cab fair from Seattle to Wilsonville? During my Divorce, Tim was my Taxi. Always there to pick me for work. Always there to take me home. He even picked me up to get my groceries. I always made fun of Tim for getting a hair cut every week. I'm not really sure what they cut, it never had a chance to grow. Turns out I was getting my hair cut right along with him and just as frequent too. Guess we both had a little OCD. There are so many good memories I could probably fill a book. Some he would never want me to repeat, like the time at the x-mas party when he.. uh, I better not go there. Then there was that time at the.. Maybe I better not go there either. We lost you too soon buddy! We miss you!

“ I was very saddened to hear about Tim's passing. The conversation I had with him was about a dog he was thinking about getting. This just makes it harder to realize he is gone. I do remember us growing up together in Vancouver. He was always at my house. So much so my mother used to say go get your brother. We were always playing outside. Sports were our lives back then and if you could get us off the basketball court or out of the pool it was too soon. We also got into trouble A LOT together. I recall a time where he didnt listen to my mom about holding a roman candle in his hand while it was going off. And sure enough we had to go to the hospital to have his hand reset after it blew up in it. I know we were stupid but it was all in good fun. I will miss him dearly but will treasure his time with me everyday.
